

WORKSHEET 6

Somewhere Today: Any child or grownup can make the world a better place

Somewhere in the world each day, people just like you are acting in kind, peaceful, loving ways. Perhaps they are...

When we talk about peace, we talk about the things we say and the things we do to show that we care about ourselves, other people, and our stuff.

Somewhere today...

... someone is being a friend instead of fighting.

... someone is caring for a child so he won't get sick.

... someone is teaching his little sister to ride a bike.

... someone is learning something new.

... someone is drawing a picture for a friend.

... someone is watering a plant.

... someone remembering the immigrants.

... someone is visiting a friend who is old.

... someone is learning to do things a different way.

... someone is learning another language.

... someone is helping a classmate with his work.

... someone is cooking for his family.

... someone is planting a tree where one was cut down.

... someone is visiting a friend who is sick.

What if people DID NOT act peacefully? (Choose a few boxes from the table and think with your partners what might happen if the people on the pictures chose to act in a different way. For example, what might happen if the doctor did not care for the child? What might happen if nobody visited a friend who is old? Possible responses: people would be sad, people could get sick or hurt, etc.).

Write your thoughts in the boxes:

If the doctor did not care for the child... The child could get sick.

Choosing to act peacefully means using our bodies and our words in a way that shows people that we care. It is something each of us can do every day.
